

SATURDAY CLASSES

Sometimes, school lessons can move fast, and not every learner gets the chance to fully understand everything before the class moves on. That's where these support classes come in - to give learners who may be struggling or taking a little longer to grasp what is taught during regular school lessons and give explanations they need to really "get it."

Designed especially for high school learners in grades 10 to 12, these sessions focus on the subjects and topics where learners need the most help. Whether it's revisiting tricky concepts, practicing problem areas, or simply getting one-on-one guidance, the goal is to help every learner feel confident and capable.

By focusing on the areas where learners experience difficulties, these classes create a supportive environment where learners can ask questions, work through challenges at their own pace, and gain the confidence they need to improve. They don't replace everyday classroom teaching but rather build on it, giving learners the chance to revisit complex topics, strengthen their foundational knowledge, and enhance their overall academic performance.

Parents can feel reassured that their children are receiving the kind of personalized academic attention that regular school lessons can't always provide. With this extra support, learners are not just catching up — they're getting ahead.

These classes are free!
